Ryan Crouser erhält den Hector-Smith Master Coach Award für seine Schlüsselrolle beim Gewinn der historischen Olympiamedaille Jamaikas.

Ryan Crouser, the American shot put star and three-time Olympic gold medalist, is set to receive the Hector-Smith Master Coach award from the Jamaican Track & Field Coaches Association for his significant contribution to Jamaica's Olympic success. Crouser played a pivotal role in helping Jamaican athlete Roje Stona achieve a historic 27th Olympic gold medal for the nation in discus during the Paris Olympics. His dedication included attending Stona's practice sessions at the Arkansas Razorbacks, emphasizing the collaborative spirit that transcends national boundaries in athletics.

Crouser's recognition comes as a highlight to his impressive career, which also boasts three world championship titles. While he has consistently left little room for competitors like Jamaica's Rajindra Campbell on the shot put field, his willingness to support fellow athletes from different countries marks a notable shift in his focus from solely personal achievement to fostering sporting camaraderie. This award acknowledges not just his prowess in shot put but also his commitment to the broader athletic community, showcasing how collaboration can lead to monumental successes.
